Capital improvements and value-add plan

Ownership completed roof replacement (2017), common-area refresh and fitness room (2019), and an LED exterior lighting retrofit (2023). The remaining opportunity is an interior upgrade program across the 34 classic units.

Program element	Scope	Units	Cost per unit	Total	Rent premium
Classic interior upgrade	Quartz counters, stainless appliances, LED lighting, hardware	34	$6,200	$210,800	$55–$80 / month
Washer-dryer connections	In-unit connections where plumbing allows	20	$2,400	$48,000	$35 / month
Smart locks and thermostats	Keyless entry, programmable thermostats	48	$650	$31,200	$15 / month
Deferred maintenance reserve	Asphalt seal coat, drainage, exterior paint touch-up	—	—	$85,000	—
Total identified capital				$375,000

The capital plan is presented as a buyer's opportunity and is not included in the trailing figures or in the Deal Scope Data Sheet, which captures the in-place operating position. Buyers who intend to execute the program should model it explicitly.

Risk factors

- Property tax reassessment. Taxes are likely to reset to the transaction price. The data sheet carries the trailing figure; buyers should sensitise expenses for a reassessment of roughly $2,700 per year above trailing.
- Interest-rate exposure. A 100 basis point increase in the note rate reduces Year 1 cash flow after debt service by roughly $45,000 at 60% leverage and compresses the supportable price materially.
- Exit cap rate. Each 25 basis points of exit cap expansion reduces the reversion value by roughly 3.7%. The Deal Scope sensitivity grids quantify this at the solved price.
- Loss-to-lease realisation. The pro forma assumes market rents on all units; achieving them requires completing the interior program and absorbing turnover vacancy.
- Single-market concentration. Performance depends on Springfield's health-care and logistics employers; a contraction at Springfield Medical Center would weigh on demand.
- Insurance and utilities. Insurance premiums rose 18% at the 2026 renewal across the region; master-metered water exposes ownership to utility inflation.

Packet size

A typical broker offering memorandum runs 25 to 60 pages, most of it photography and market narrative. The information Deal Scope needs fits on the two pages of Appendix A. This demonstration packet is kept to roughly fifteen pages so it can be read in a meeting while still showing where each input comes from.
